WHY A FAMILY-CENTERED CARE MODEL?

According to Campell (2003) and Weish, Fisher and Baird (2002), an individual's illness can create stress and disorganization in the family.

Family dynamics have a major influence on health issues.

The family is considered a source of stress or support in the evolution of the health problem.

USE OF A NURSING MODEL

The family analysis model allows to:

Guide the nurse in her practice

Guide the nurse in her data collection

Develop hypotheses and interventions

CALGARY MODELS

CFAM: Calgary Family Assessment Model: assessment of family strengths and problems

According to 3 categories:

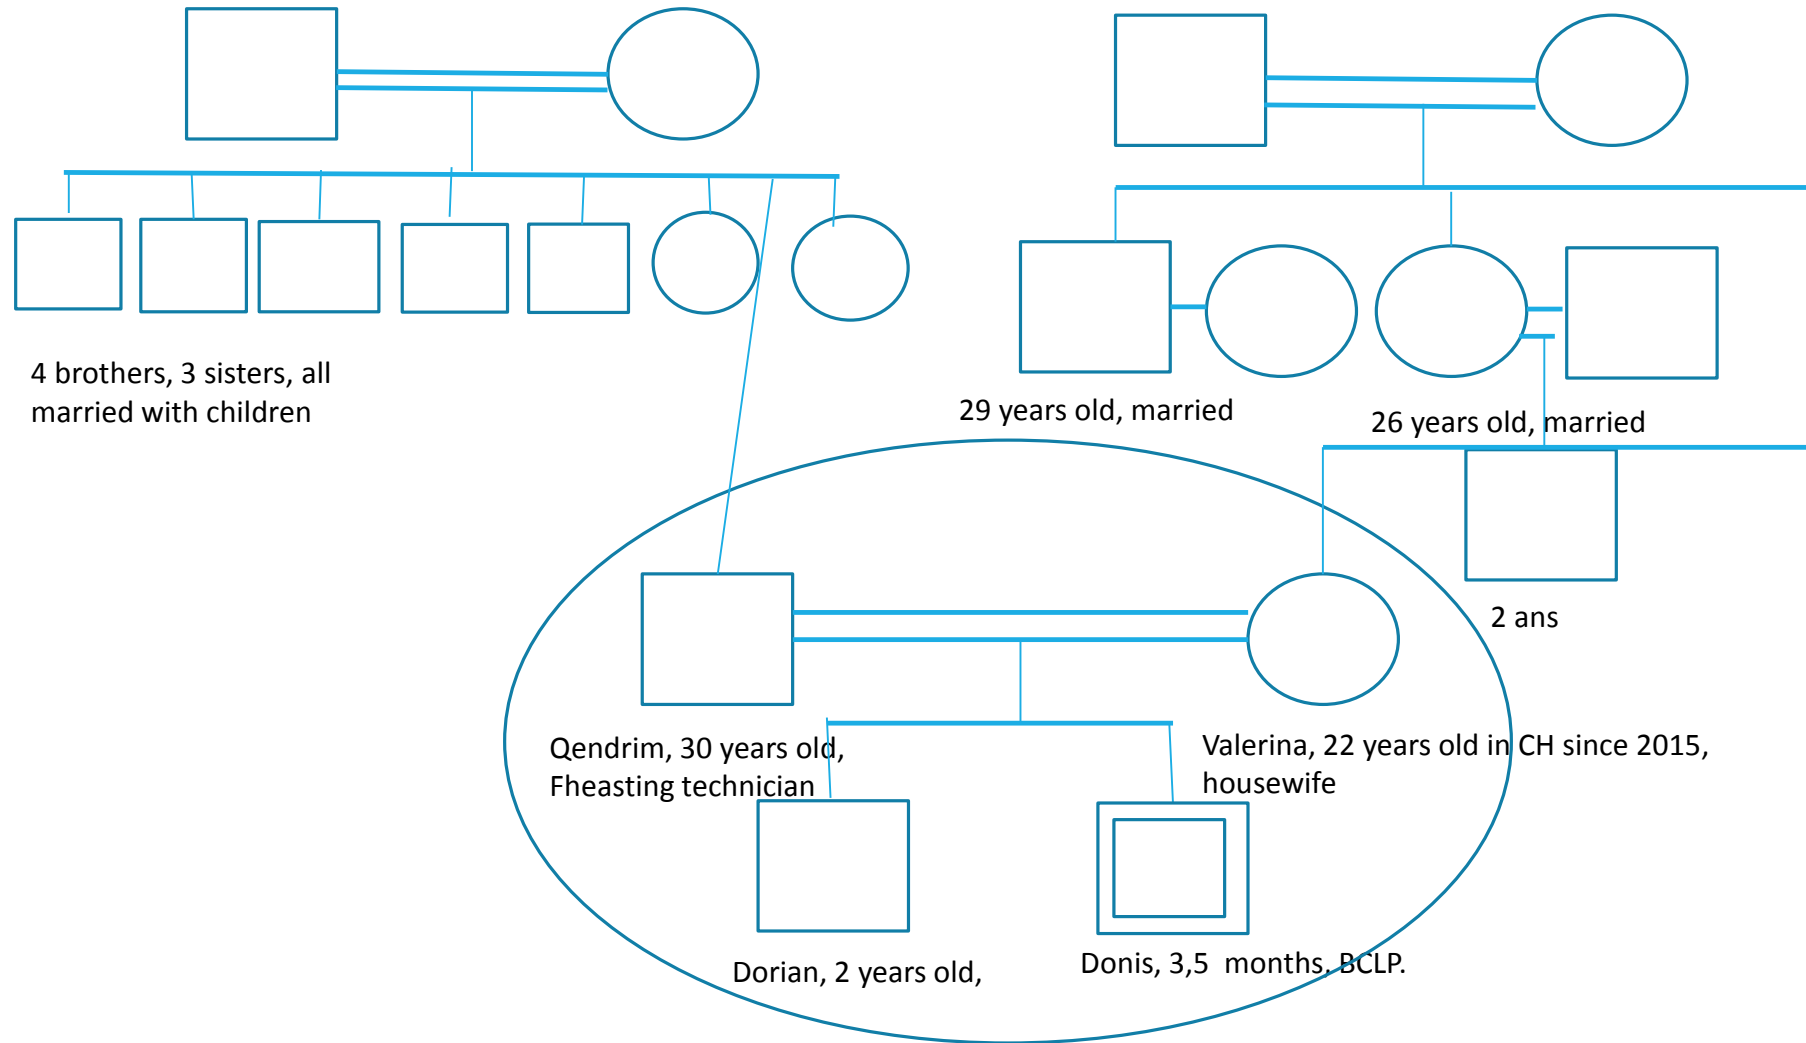

- 1) Structure
- 2) Functioning
- 3) Development

-> health problems will have an influence on each category

Depending on the context, the nurse will judge which category requires a more in-depth assessment.
